Golden Kingklip

Also Known as: Golden Conger, Pink Ling, Pink Cusk Eel

Product Overview

The sweet and moist Golden Kingklip fillets from the pristine oceans in Southern Chile will delight your customers!

This deep-water fish has an eel-like body and head, and are pink and orange with irregular brown markings. It grows to 1.6m in length making its tasty fillets usually quite long and free of bones. It has pink to white flesh which is firm and forms dense, large flakes when cooked. It's high in Omega 3 and Omega 6 polyunsaturated fatty acids, which make a vital contribution to a healthy diet. Excellent fried, baked, poached, steamed or grilled. We offer a variety of cuts including tender cheeks and can pack according to your needs.

Origin

Kingklip inhabit a depth range of 20 to 800 meters, being mainly found in waters between 300m to 500m off the coast of Chile. They also are found in the southwest Pacific waters of New Zealand and temperate Australia. They inhabit a variety of substrates from rocky ground to soft sand and mud, in which they burrow. We typically catch them by drop lining and bottom set long lining. Once caught, they are delivered gutted to our processing plant where they are cleaned and either shipped fresh or blast frozen.
